With the sudden increase in remote workers due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, law firms are now recognizing the increased amount of cyber security threats. Major vulnerabilities can include unsecured workstations and personal devices, unsecured data transmissions and weak enforcement of risk-mitigating policies. With all of the recent changes that have taken place, cyber awareness and protection is becoming essential for attorneys and law firms in this new work reality. Please join us as we discuss how cyber threats can affect your law firm and steps you can take to mitigate your risk.
