The panel will address practicing law as an appellate lawyer in the public sector. What are the unique opportunities for appellate lawyers outside of private practice? What are the different types of public sector jobs at the local, state and federal level? What are the pathways to government service? The panelists have each held various public service jobs as appellate lawyers and they will share their experiences.

Topics

- Types of public service jobs for appellate lawyers
- Pathways to government service
- Transitions to and from private practice
- Benefits (and downsides) to public sector practice
