What is a "Statement of Decision" and how does it impact a family law appeal? When do you want, and not want, a Statement of Decision? What should you seek to have included in a Statement of Decision? What are mandatory findings and when are they required in family law cases? This 1 hour class explores these questions and other strategic and practical points about the Statement of Decision process, to ensure that, as a family law trial attorney, you do what is needed, before and after a trial, to protect your client's appellate rights. For appellate attorneys, this course will provide you with an overview of important appellate issues specific to family law cases.
